

27611 to 27650—Continued.

- 27622. "(No. 722.) An Asiatic table grape, called 'Ghusaine.' Bunch 1 to 1½ feet long, of loose, conical shape, with side bunches. Berries of medium size, elongated, sometimes slightly pressed in on one side. In a bunch there are always a few half-dried berries. They are pale yellow in color, with a whitish bloom; flesh firm, of very sweet and spicy taste. Contains usually two seeds, seldom one. A fine table grape, also used for wine making. Not very prolific, and needs a long season to ripen." (Meyer.)
- 27623. "(No. 723.) An Asiatic table grape, called 'Kishmish.' Bunch medium size, conical, compact. Berries small, slightly elongated, but less so than red Kishmish; color milk-white with whitish wax bloom and a few red dots; skin white, thick; flesh white with light yellowish hue, juicy and sweet; three rudimentary seeds. Ripens at the beginning of September and is a prolific bearer." (Meyer.)
- 27624. "(No. 724.) A variety of Asiatic table grape, called 'Korsa Kishmish,' resembles No. 723 (S. P. I. No. 27623) very much, but the color of the berries is less white, the shape irregular, and the fruit ripens earlier." (Meyer.)
- 27625. "(No. 725.) An Asiatic table grape, called 'Kishmish' (red). Bunch large, long, medium compact, of cylindrical-conical shape, with side bunches. Berries small, egg-shaped, uneven, pink colored, with whitish pink bloom. Skin thin; flesh pale yellow, juicy, and very sweet. Rudimentary seeds only. Ripens about the end of August." (Meyer.)
- 27626. "(No. 726.) An Asiatic table grape, called 'Kishmish daba.' Said to bear small, compact bunches of small berries; color white; early and prolific." (Meyer.)
- 27627. "(No. 727.) A local variety of table grape, called 'Askari.' Bunch large, long, of loose, irregular-conical shape with side bunches. Berries small, elongated egg-shaped; color pale green, with a few dark dots. Flesh juicy, not sweet. Ripens near the end of August. A prolific bearer and a very fine table grape, but can not be transported on account of its tender skin, which often breaks open after a rain when fully ripe. Suffers greatly from Oidium. Recommended for home use in dry regions with long and hot summers." (Meyer.)
- 27628. "(No. 728.) A table grape called 'Malaki.' Said to be black, early, and very sweet." (Meyer.)
- 27629. "(No. 729.) A table grape called 'Kizil-sioum.' Said to be yellow, early, and sweet." (Meyer.)
- 27630. "(No. 730.) A table grape, called 'Mamarsa ghansi.' Said to be a very good, sweet, black grape. Late." (Meyer.)
- 27631. "(No. 731.) A table grape, called 'Kordash.' Said to be black, small, and very sweet." (Meyer.)
- 27632. "(No. 732.) A table grape, called 'Danna bazan.' Said to be black, small, and of subacid flavor." (Meyer.)
- 27633. "(No. 733.) A table grape, called 'Kara-sarma.' Said to bear large, sweet, black berries. Early." (Meyer.)
- 27634. "(No. 734.) A table grape, called 'Alachki.' Said to be red, large, sweet, and very early." (Meyer.)